

I am interested in evolution,
but not necessarily in Darwinian terms.

Time was when organized religion was effective in imposing a set of beliefs and behaviors.
Now increased education and multicultural exposure has undermined that authority. We are delivered to ourselves to decide what is the better choice, the nobler way, the worthy goal.

The most interesting study is, I think, of how our minds evolve and if it is possible to get some perspective on who and what we are becoming as a species, as a race.

- Jan Brown Checco

an installation at the Carnegie Arts Center, Covington KY September 2002 Brown Checco Fine Arts <http://w3.one.net/~jbcfas>